

Terms and Conditions and Legal Regulation of the Use of the Institute for Media Studies Website

All information, documents or other written materials displayed on this website are published by the Institute for Media Studies (hereinafter referred to as MTMI) exclusively for the purpose of information provision. Browsing the web pages of the MTMI shall be considered acceptance of the following terms and conditions by the user.

The MTMI shall grant the right to use the documents (hereinafter referred to as pages) displayed by and found on this server (hereinafter referred to as server) provided that the user acknowledges that:

1. The pages found on the server only serve the acquisition of knowledge.
2. Users shall not be authorised to modify, reproduce or use for commercial purposes the pages found on the server.
3. Unauthorised use of the pages shall be prosecuted under copyright, criminal and civil laws.

The elements of this website are separately protected by copyright and other laws in accordance with which these elements shall not be copied in part or in their entirety. No logos, graphics, sounds or images of this website shall be copied, forwarded or transmitted without prior written consent by the MTMI. The mtmi.hu domain name is protected by copyright and trademark laws, the use of which - with the exception of references to said domain name - shall be possible only with prior written consent by the MTMI.

The original content of the website as well as any and all components of the website pages (texts, images, sounds, videos, animations, etc.) are protected by copyright law and as such shall not be used without prior written consent. No authorisation shall be necessary for quoting from the website; however, quotations must be in adherence to the provisions of the relevant legislation. In case of quotes lifted from this website - in addition to displaying the source - we ask that a hyperlink be placed at the appropriate location leading to the corresponding page of the MTMI portal.

Images displayed on the website are protected by copyright law and their use shall require authorisation. Images displayed on the website shall not be saved and used for commercial purposes without prior authorisation.

Without express written permission of the MTMI, the contents of the website shall not be downloaded and saved into open or closed databases, and shall not be used for commercial purposes and distributed. The contents and formal components of the website shall not be modified and shall not be used for purposes other than that for which these were originally intended on the website, regardless of authorisation to reproduce these. No components of the website (separately or together) shall be reproduced on-line or in print for purposes of public display and publishing without authorisation to this effect by the MTMI.

The MTMI shall reserve the right to modify and revise the website at any given time, as well as to restrict or deny access to this website. The MTMI shall not guarantee continuous or error-free access to its web pages. The MTMI shall not be held responsible for the content and reliability of websites hyperlinked to its own website. The MTMI shall not be liable for the suitability for any purpose of the information, graphics, diagrams, images or software published on the pages by the server. All documents, graphics, diagrams and images shall be displayed "as is" without any warranties and may change or be modified without prior notification.

The MTMI shall not be held liable for any direct, indirect, accidental, special or any other damages (including without restrictions profit lost or damages arising from the interruption of the course of business or the loss of business information or data). However, the MTMI shall assume liability for the accuracy at the time of publication of the information displayed pursuant to statutory reporting obligations.